Feds lay out GM ultimatum

Associated Press

DETROIT General Motors said Thursday a committee of bondholders has agreed to a sweetened deal proposed by the U.S. government to erase the automaker's unsecured debt in exchange for company stock.

The news came in a regulatory filing that spells out the Obama administration's game plan for what it hopes will be a speedy Chapter II bankruptcy reorganization that will leave GM with a much smaller debt load and the U.S. government as the dominant shareholder.

A person familiar with GM's plans said it was "probable" that the company would file for bankruptcy protection on Monday. The person didn't want to be identified because the plans were still under discussion with the U.S. and Canadian governments.

The government proposal is similar to the approach taken in the bank-ruptcy reorganization approach used by Chrysler. Its plan to shed assets and sell control of a downsized carmaker to Fiat, aided by government financial assistance, could receive final approval from a bankruptcy court judge in New York before the end of the week.

A senior Obama administration official estimated that GM would be under bankruptcy protection for 60 to 90 days, which is longer than Chrysler's reorganization because of the size and complexity of GM. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the ongoing preparations.

The government's goal for GM is to eventually return it to profitability, allowing it to eventually sell its shares. But the risks for taxpayers are daunting, with U.S. auto sales near their lowest level in 27 years.

The revised offer to the holders of $27 billion in unsecured GM bonds amounted to a take-it-or-leave-it ultimatum: Go along with the government auto task force's proposal or be left holding the assets a new GM doesn't want—ones with presumably little value at all.

It's time to clean up this pop culture mess

Some aspects of pop culture never cease to amuse me.

Please don't tell my mother, but I can't avert my eyes from any Maury Povich show with DNA results. (You are NOT the father!)

But there are pop people, places and things—such as any VHI show with "Love" in it—that I could definitely do without. Some are so sickening that I'm banishing them every Friday via my brand-new blog: chicagonow.com/blogs/kyles-files. Sign up and join the discussion.

Not sure who qualifies for deletion? Check out this partial perp list.

Diddy

Tantric tweets. An epic search for a Smithers-like assistant. Rapping on Cassie's latest, and otherwise OK, "Must Be Love" single. I'm not sure exactly which annoying act put him over the edge, but Diddy's being dogged in Twitter Town. #UnfollowDiddy was a top trending topic Wednesday, and frankly it's about time. As Kyles Files contributor "the Derrick" points out, Diddy is veering closer to becoming a caricature of himself. So, Diddy is deleted; he should embrace his own annoying catchphrase and: "Take that, take that," as one Twitterer teased.

Parking meter system

No, parking meters, you normally aren't part of pop culture, but darn it if you and your pay-and-display box brethren don't deserve deletion. Your latest infraction, a temporary fail for approximately 250 boxes on Wednesday, made it free-ninety nine to park, the Tribune reported.

I'm not mad at that because local parking peeps deserve respite from your ridiculous rates. What makes me mad is that you don't work too well at all, and we're stuck with you for 75 years. Hopefully, by the latter end of this parking prison sentence, cars will be obsolete, and therefore, you will too.

Candy Spelling

Candy Spelling is indeed a mother, but not in the sense that she gave birth, if you get my meaning. Shame on this wicked woman for telling a Massachusetts radio station she blames daughter Tori for the death of Aaron Spelling, as E! reported.

"My daughter one day decided that she wasn't speaking to my husband, myself and my son, and that's how it's continued for the last, oh gosh, four or five years," Mama Spelling spilled to WMAS (94.7-FM), according to E! "And it was sad; that's what killed my husband, actually. He just didn't want to live after that. He [had] just done everything he could possibly do for his daughter, and she wanted no part of him once he couldn't do anything for her."

Oh noes. Typically, I'm no Tori fan. But I'd support the "Beverly Hills, 90210" star any day against her monster of a mom.

Vain or insecure?

Jean Twenge, author of "The Narcissism Epidemic," said one of the great myths about narcissism is that it's a mask for insecurity.

"Deep down inside, narcissists think they're awesome," Twenge said. Efforts to mitigate narcissism by boosting a person's ego is "like suggesting to a fat person that they eat more doughnuts," she said.

Other psychologists disagree.

Wendy Behary, director of the Cognitive Therapy Center of New Jersey and author of "Disarming the Narcissist," released last year, said that underneath narcissists' bravado is a high degree of insecurity often stemming from parents who pressured them to excel at everything.

"The message they get is that just being who you are isn't good enough; you have to achieve, you have to be extraordinary," said

Behary, who specializes in treating narcissists. "They feel they have to show off to prove themselves."

Chicago psychoanalyst Frank Summers, who specializes in character disorders and agrees that narcissism is rooted in a feeling of defectiveness, said you can identify narcissists by how they handle disappointment.

Summers said he had one patient who would fly into a rage whenever he was criticized at work. Another patient would crumble into self-doubt when the man she was seeing didn't call her when he was supposed to. Narcissists are, in a way, addicted to affirmation from others, Summers said, so they suffer inordinately when they don't get it.

"To feel disappointed is normal, but to have your sense of self deflated? That's not normal," Summers said. ALEXIA ELEJALDE-RUIZ

Are Millennials creating a narcissistic culture?

By Alexia Elejalde-Ruiz | REDEYE

Hey there, good-looking, you charming devil you. Aren't you unique, so special, so destined for greatness? What's that? Real life is harder than you expected? No, no, it's not your fault. It's the world. So unfair. You deserve much better.

Welcome to the worldview of the narcissist, a self-involved specimen who feels entitled to the very best by virtue of his or her inherent awesomeness.

In her new book, "The Narcissism Epidemic," released in April, author Jean Twenge argues that society is more narcissistic than ever—and that young adults are hastening its spread.

Twenge, associate professor of psychology at San Diego State University, says several factors are to blame: overinvolved parents who indulged their children's every whim, schools that awarded trophies just for showing up—and, more recently, Facebook, Twitter, YouTube and reality TV, which encourage people to broadcast their every musing and feed the idea that anyone can be a star.

But at the core of narcissism's rise was a cultural shift begun decades ago to celebrate the individual—a good thing, until self-love turned into self-obsession, Twenge said.

Though everyone has some narcissistic traits, experts say there's a difference between feeling good about yourself and being a narcissist. Twenge said studies show high narcissism is on the rise.

A 2005 National Institutes of Health study of 35,000 Americans found that 9.4 percent of people in their 20s said they had experienced symptoms of Narcissistic Personality Disorder, a clinical condition, in their lifetimes. That's compared with 6.2 percent of the general population and just 3.2 percent of people older than 65, who've had much more time to be narcissistic.

To be diagnosed with Narcissistic Personality Disorder, a person has to meet at least five of nine symptoms spelled out in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders. But the essential features of NPD are a pervasive pattern of grandiosity, need for admiration and a lack of empathy.

And it's not just that young people tend to be more self-absorbed than their elders.

When college students in 1982 filled out the Narcissistic Personality Inventory, a standard test for measuring non-clinical narcissism, one out of seven answered the majority of questions in the narcissistic direction. When college students took the same inventory in 2006, one out of four leaned narcissist, Twenge said.

Twenge's theory that people born in the 1970s, '80s, and '90s have ushered in a wave of narcissism—"Generation Me," as she called them in another book—has its critics.

Neil Howe, an expert on generations and coauthor of the 2000 book "Millennials Rising," said narcissism was much more of a trait among Baby Boomers, who rebelled against the system by affirming their individuality.

Millennials, by contrast, are performing more community service than their predecessors, getting along with their parents, and are willing to acknowledge their flaws, Howe said. They are optimistic and do think they're special, he said, but that can be positive because they then strive to live up to the standards they have set for themselves and society.

Millennials and other young Chicagoans admit their generation is narcissistic, but in a good way.

"I think I'm beautiful; is that a bad thing?" said Sandy Barrera, 31, who lives in Rogers Park. "It's self-esteem."

But experts emphasize that self-esteem is distinct from narcissism.

"Self-esteem, at base, is a feeling of 'I feel good about myself,' "Twenge said. "Narcissism, at base, is, 'I'm special and better than other people.' "

Contrary to the popular belief that narcissists are more successful than their peers, Twenge said studies show narcissists' overconfidence backfires because they don't work as hard.

Psychologist Albert Bernstein, author of "Emotional Vampires," divides narcissists into two categories: "Narcissistic Superstars," who strive to get ahead at any cost, and "Legends in their Own Minds," who think they're so special that rules don't apply to them. The latter—who don't recycle or obey traffic rules, who cut corners at work and take "mental health days"—are on the rise, Bernstein said, as society feeds the notion that people don't have to do what they don't want to do.

Narcissists often are charming and fun to be around—at first. But they lack empathy for others and have trouble seeing any perspective other than their own, so deeper relationships can be difficult, psychologists say.

Needing constant reminders of how great

Generation who?

Entitled narcissists or civic-minded world-changers? Your view of Millennials—or Generation Y, or the Net Generation, or Echo Boomers, as they're sometimes called—could change depending on the book you read. Here's a sampling of some books that seek to capture the essence of the Millennial generation, which, again, depending on the book, includes people who were born between 1978-2000, 1980-2001, or 1982-2000.

The Trophy Kids Grow Up: How the Millennial Generation is Shaking Up the Workplace by Ron Alsop (2008)

Excerpt: "They want structure and clear direction in their work assignments, but they also expect flexibility to decide when and where they complete the tasks. And though they crave individual praise and recognition, they can also be terrific team players."

me

they are, narcissists thrive on social networking sites, Twenge said.

According to a University of Georgia study published in September—and co-written by Twenge's co-author on "The Narcissism Epidemic," W. Keith Campbell—you can tell a narcissist by his or her Facebook page. The study gave personality questionnaires to r30 Facebook users and found that the people who scored higher in narcissistic personality had more friends and wall posts on their profiles, and they tended to use more glamorous, self-promoting pictures as their main photo.

Though someone else's vanity may seem harmless, Twenge said over-confidence can lead narcissists to take dangerous risks. And a superiority complex can lead narcissists to take more resources for themselves and leave less for other people.

Aaron Swiercz, 27, who works at a guitar store, said he spots narcissists all the time. They're the ones who will knock a guitar off the wall, get their fingerprints on it, then take it to the counter and demand a discount because it's scratched.

"But they're the ones who scratched it," said Swiercz, of Joliet. "They're so wrapped up in their own thing they don't even notice."

While there's no excuse for being impolite, Jasmine Caban, 30, said pop culture's emphasis on "being out there and being yourself" has made narcissism an acceptable and even desirable trait.

"If you don't push yourself," Caban of Humboldt Park said, "you're going to get pushed over." AELEJALDERUIZ@TRIBUNE.COM

Are you a narcissist?

Where do you fall on the narcissism scale? Here are 10 sets of statements chosen from the 40 used in the Narcissistic Personality Inventory developed in the '80s by researchers at the University of California at Berkeley. They appear in the book "The Narcissism Epidemic."

Circle "A" or "B" to indicate which statement you most agree with. (Answer honestly—respondents aren't actually told the test is meant to gauge narcissism when they take it.)

- A The thought of ruling the world frightens the hell out of me.
- B If I ruled the world it would be a much better place.
- A I prefer to blend in with the crowd.
  - B I like to be the center of attention.
- A I can live my life any way I want to.
  - B People can't always live their lives in terms of what they want.
- A I don't particularly like to show off my body.
  - B I like to show off my body.

- A I will never be satisfied until I get all that I deserve.
- B I will take my satisfactions as they come.
- A I am no better or no worse than most people.
  - B I think I am a special person.
- 7 A I find it easy to manipulate people.
  - B I don't like it when I find myself manipulating people.
- A I try not to be a showoff.
  - B I will usually show off if I get the chance.

Questions 3, 5, 7, 10: 1 point for "A" Questions 1, 2, 4, 6, 8, 9: 1 point for "B"

0-3 points: You have scored low in narcissism.

4-5 points: You have scored about the same in narcissism as the average college student. This is a slightly above-average score for someone older than 40.

6-7 points: You have scored above average in narcissism

8-10 points: You have scored significantly above average in narcissism.

The World According to Y: Inside the New Adult Generation by Rebecca Huntley (2006)

Excerpt: "Paradoxically, whilst this is a generation that values freedom, flexibility and choice, it is also far more conformist than its X predecessors. The desire to fit in, to be part of the group, which has always been present in youth culture, is especially important for Generation Y."

Generation Me: Why Today's Young Americans are More Confident, Assertive, Entitled—and More Miserable than Ever Before by Jean Twenge (2007)

Excerpt: "GenMe's focus on the needs of the individual is not necessarily self-absorbed or isolationist: instead, it's a way of moving through the world beholden to few social rules and with the unshakable belief that you're important."

Millennials Rising: The Next Great Generation by Neil Howe and William Strauss (2000)

Excerpt: "They will rebel against the culture by cleaning it up, rebel against political cynicism by touting trust, rebel against individualism by stressing teamwork, rebel against adult pessimism by being upbeat, and rebel against social ennui by actually going out and getting a few things done."

Governor to decide texting ban

It's up 2 u, gov. Illinois lawmakers have voted to bar people from texting or checking e-mail while driving. Now it's up to Gov. Ouinn to decide whether the ban will become law. It would bar drivers from reading their e-mail or sending text messages while moving. But they could do it while pulled over to the side of the road or at a standstill in traffic.

3rd swine flu death

A third person in Illinois has died from H1N1 swine flu. Officials with the Kane County Health Department say a 42year-old man there died Thursday from complications of the virus. On Wednesday, officials reported the death of a suburban woman. The first swine flu death in the state, a 22-year-old Chicago man, was reported Monday. Each also had underlying health issues, officials said.

Ice cream shocker

A 12-year-old girl was left in tears at the Deerfield Baskin-Robbins after a woman swiped her ice cream money, police said. The victim placed a $20 bill on the counter when another customer, described as a blond woman in her 40s, distracted the girl by asking about her favorite ice cream flavor. Grabbing her own ice cream and the girl's money from the counter in the same motion, the woman exited the store with three young children in tow, police said.

ISAAC CAROTHERS CHARGED WITH FRAUD, BRIBERY IN SCANDAL

Chicago Tribune

Ald. Isaac Carothers (29th), a staunch ally of Mayor Daley, was indicted Thursday on charges he accepted about $40,000 in improvements to his residence as well as meals and tickets to sporting events in exchange for backing a major project by a developer.

The developer, Calvin Boender, also was indicted.

Carothers, 54, was charged with four counts of wire and mail fraud and one count each of accepting a bribe and filing a false federal income tax return.

According to federal authorities, Boender sought to transform the city's largest undeveloped tract of land, a 50-acre former rail yard and industrial site in Carothers' West Side ward.

Carothers supported successful zoning changes for the Galewood Yards project, enabling half of the property to be sold at a profit of about $3 million to Boender, the charges alleged.

Between June and September 2004, Boender allegedly paid for about $40,000 in improvements to Carothers' home, including painting both the exterior and interior and installing new windows and exterior doors as well as central air conditioning.

Boender directed a general contractor who worked for him to provide the home improvements without charging Carothers, authorities said.

The developer also paid for meals for Carothers and gave him free tickets to professional sporting events, including skybox tickets for at least one White Sox playoff game during its World Series run in 2005, according to the charges.

"We want to send a message today ... that if people pay money to aldermen who have an influence over zoning in the hope of getting a benefit ... we will investigate both the alderman and the people who pay the money," U.S. Atty. Patrick Fitzgerald said at an after-

DID YOU KNOW?

Isaac Carothers' father, William Carothers (28th), was himself convicted in federal court of attempting to extort a hospital contractor for free remodeling work on his offices in 1981. Carothers is Mayor Daley's foremost political ally on the West Side.

noon news conference.

Lawrence Beaumont, attorney for Carothers, urged the public to remember that his client is presumed innocent, and that it is up to the government to prove the charges at trial.

"We expect we will enter a plea of not guilty, and at this point we are looking forward to that trial," Beaumont said.

Federal authorities have been investigating

Carothers, chairman of the City Council's Police and Fire Committee, for the past several years.

Carothers is the first alderman to face federal charges since Arenda Troutman (20th) was charged in 2007 with demanding campaign money and bribes to support developers' projects.

Daley said Thursday's indictment was "sad and surprising news to those of us who have worked with him. I have known Ike Carothers for several years and have known him only to be a hardworking, dedicated public servant. It will be up to the courts to determine whether the public trust had been violated.

"These are clearly very serious allegations. As I have always said, if there are individuals who have violated the law, they should be prosecuted and held accountable for their actions."

"Yeah, but it's a computer glitch. How many computer glitches do you have in your company? So it happens, but I know the headline is important 'cause you need the headlines."

U. of I. applicants may have gotten special consideration

Chicago Tribune

At a time when it's more competitive than ever to get into the University of Illinois, some students with subpar academic records are being admitted after interference from state lawmakers and university trustees, a Tribune investigation has revealed.

Hundreds of applicants received special consideration in the last five years, according to documents obtained by the Tribune under the state's Freedom of Information Act. The records chronicle a shadow admissions system in which some students won spots at the state's most prestigious public university over the protests of admissions officers, while others had their rejections reversed during an unadvertised appeal process.

In one case, a relative of Antoin "Tony" Rezko, the now-convicted influence peddler for former Gov. Rod Blagojevich, got admitted after U. of I. President B. Joseph White wrote an e-mail stating that the governor "has expressed his support, and would like to see admitted" Rezko's relative and another applicant.

White's message to the university chancellor was passed on to admissions officials on the same day they entered a rejection decision for the Rezko relative. "He's actually pretty low," replied an admissions officer, referring to the applicant's ACT score and other credentials. "Let me know when the denial letter can go out."

Instead, the relative was admitted.

Since 2005, about 800 undergraduate students have landed on the clout list for the Urbana-Champaign campus. It's unknown how many would qualify for entry on their own, but their acceptance rate is higher than average. For the 2008-09 school year, for example, about 77 percent were accepted, compared with 69 percent of all applicants.

High school counselors and admissions experts said letting clout affect admissions compromises the integrity of the university.

"Whether it's [a Rezko relative] or any other kid who takes a spot, he typically takes a spot of someone who is more qualified. That's the part that gets my blood boiling," said Jim Conroy, a New Trier Township High School counselor. "This is not a private institution. This is yours and mine. Our flagship state university should not be part of any political shenanigans."

White said it's not unusual for selective universities to receive input on applicants from interested parties, and it's important to have a system to track the requests. He declined to discuss specific cases, but said: "I would never support admission of a student over betterqualified students simply because of connections and pressure."

Welcome to the jungle, Patti

Chicago Tribune

Starring in a reality show set in a Costa Rican jungle is a "pretty good option" for her family, former first lady Patti Blagojevich said Thursday. She made the comments in a telephone media junket arranged for NBC's "I'm a Celebrity ... Get Me Out of Here!" She spoke with the Tribune with a fellow contestant, former NBA player and Fox sports co-host John "Spider" Salley.

Contestants head to the jungle Saturday. The show premieres Monday. An abbreviated transcript of some of Patti's answers:

Do you think THIS is the best way to help your kids or use your time right now?

We're living through an interesting economy, and my husband unfortunately got unjustly fired from his job. And then the charity that I worked for, after that happened to him, decided that they did not want the publicity, and let me go from a job that I really enjoyed and liked. And so it's been a tough six months for me and my family.

What do they pay you? What do you keep? What goes to charity?

Obviously, we're compensated for our appearance on the show, but then even a bigger part is that I'm raising money for Bare Necessities, which is a pediatric cancer foundation in Illinois.

How have the last seven years prepared you to eat scorpions and stink-bugs?

Well, you know, Chicago politics and Illinois politics is a treacherous place sometimes. I can't imagine I'm going to find anything in the jungle worse than some of the stuff that we've encountered on a personal level in Chicago.

What WON'T you do on this show? Snakes?

I have a healthy respect for the environment. You need to be able to tell the difference between unpleasant and dangerous.

Eat guts?

I'll judge whether I'll eat something as it comes.

There's already a Park City in Illinois, but Chicago deserves that title.

The city has 570 parks in various shapes and sizes, according to the Chicago Park

It hasn't felt like summer this week, so perhaps you didn't take your dog to Grace Noethling Park (a.k.a. Wiggly Field) or shoot hoops at Blackwelder Park on the South Side.

But before summer activities get under way, you should know how to be safe in Chicago parks. RedEye searched through data posted on the Chicago Police Department Web site for crimes committed on park property this year. Most of the incidents related to battery, theft, possession of drugs, vandalism and trespassing.

Parkgoers are arrested for trespassing only if they have been warned to stay out of the parks for various reasons—if the park is closed, for instance, or a patron is being disruptive, said Park

District spokeswoman Marta Juaniza. The parks and beaches stay open until 11 p.m., but the field houses typically close

> Depending on the needs of the community, parks are policed in a variety of ways, Juaniza said. Each park is patrolled by a police car, she said, and some have an on-site security officer or a mission team officer who visits the park.

The Lakefront Trail, which is under Park District jurisdiction, is monitored by police bike teams, Juaniza said.

Last month, two homicides occurred on park property, police data show. A 28-year-old man was shot and killed in Davis Park in Austin on April 3.

Five days later, a 22-year-old man was shot and killed on park property near 94th Street and Greenwood Avenue. Burnside Park is listed at that address.

Of the 511 homicides that occurred last year, six occurred on park property, according to a Chicago Police Department report.

PESHAWAR, Pakistan Militants detonated two bombs in a busy market and attacked two police checkpoints in northern Pakistan on Thursday, killing at least 14 people, wounding scores more and testing the resolve of the government as it takes on the Taliban in the Swat Valley.

The attacks in Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan happened within two hours of each other and a day after an assault on security forces in the eastern city of Lahore killed around 30 people. That strike was claimed by the Pakistani Taliban, who warned of further attacks unless the government called off the Swat offensive.

"Our targets are security forces, who are killing innocent people in Swat and other adjoining areas," said Hakimullah Mehsud, a deputy to Pakistani Taliban chief Baitullah Mehsud. "We regret that some innocent people were also killed in the Lahore attack, we did not want that."

He said other attacks were planned for the major cities of Multan, Rawalpindi, Lahore and the capital, Islamabad, and urged civilians to flee.

Two bombs in Peshawar were mounted on motorcycles and exploded within seconds of each other, tearing off walls and shattering windows of a row of small shops at a popular market, police and witnesses said.

"It was a sudden blast and then there was fire all around, a cloud of smoke filled the sky," said Khair Uddin, a shopkeeper whose hands and chest were left bloodied by shrapnel from the blast.

Wave of the future?

SAN FRANCISCO Google is hatching a new species of e-mail and instant messaging, but the Internet search leader first wants the hybrid service to evolve even more with the help of independent computer programmers.

The free tool, called "Google Wave," runs in a Web browser and combines elements of e-mail, instant messaging, wikis and photo sharing in an effort to make online communication more dynamic.

Google offered the first glimpse of Wave on Thursday during the company's annual conference for software developers. The rest of the Web-surfing public won't be able to hop on Google Wave until later in the year. (Go to wave.google.com for a preview.)

Among other things, Google is counting on outsiders to figure out how to weave Wave into Twitter, social networks like Facebook and existing Web-based e-mail services, said Lars Rasmussen, a Google engineering manager.

TEST ROSE MAY BE AT CENTER OF MEMPHIS INVESTIGATION SUBJECT

Associated Press

Remember Derrick Rose's missed free throws during the 2008 national title game?

Remember Memphis' heartbreaking loss to Kansas for the NCAA title?

Remember the Tigers' phenomenal 38-win season?

Allegations of major basketball violations could wipe out all of that—at least in the record books.

In a letter to the school, the NCAA says an unknown person took the SAT for a player, with his knowledge, and then the player used that test to get into Memphis. The NCAA said the athlete in question played for the Tigers in the 2007-08 season and the 2008 NCAA Tournament. The only person who played just that season was Rose.

Memphis Athletic Director R.C. Johnson would not confirm that Rose is at the center of the NCAA investigation.

Johnson would not identify the player involved for privacy reasons. But he said the player is cooperating with Memphis' investigation into the allegations.

"Nobody has thrown up any road blocks," Johnson said. "We're trying to get it resolved and do it the right way."

The NCAA has asked Memphis to provide copies of the SAT and a Sept. 2, 2008, report by a forensic document examiner who studied the handwriting in the SAT.

Rose was the No. 1 pick in the 2008 NBA draft by the Bulls and this season's rookie of the year. His agent, B.J. Armstrong, did not immediately return calls from the AP.

Memphis was notified Jan. 16 of the potentially major violations in the men's basketball program and will appear June 6 in Indianapolis before the NCAA committee on infractions for a hearing.

"We've been working on this for some time and continue to get our final presentation finalized and make sure we dotted "Nobod' has thrown up any road blocks."

R.C. JOHNSON

Memphis athletic director

all the I's and crossed all the T's," Johnson said.

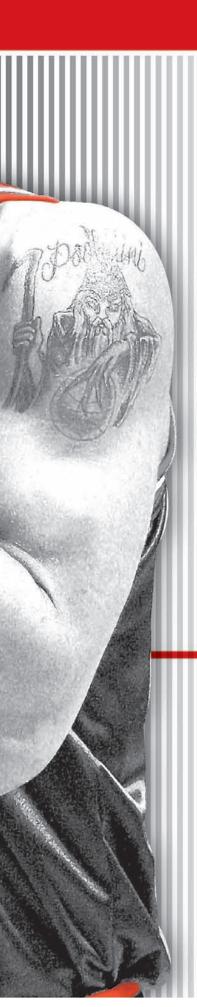

The allegedviolations occurred under John Calipari, who left March 31 to take over at Kentucky. Calipari, who's cooperating with the investigation, was told by the NCAA in a letter that he was not at risk of being charged with any violations in the case.

New Memphis coach Josh Pastner said he wasn't aware of the allegations when offered the job in April to replace Calipari.

"It's nothing that will affect the current team, which I believe," said Pastner, who first joined Tigers staff as an assistant in June 2008. "I can't comment any more than that." REDEYE CONTRIBUTED.

Sources: Rose's grade changed at Simeon

Chicago Tribune

A grade on Bulls superstar Derrick Rose's transcript was changed from a D to a C by someone at Simeon Career Academy in the final semester of his senior year, sources said Thursday.

A month later, after colleges received Rose's doctored transcript, the grade was changed back to D, according to sources and a report by Chicago Public Schools inspector general's office.

The report also indicates the same fraud occurred with three other athletes, all of whom went to Simeon, sources said.

Nothing has come of the investigation at the Chicago level because the inspector general's office was never able to ascertain who had changed the players' grades.

Though the student information system Simeon was using at the time tracked whose code was entered to change the grades, the employee was out of town at the time, said James Sullivan, the school district's inspector general.

"Staff at Simeon routinely used each others' codes, so we could not specifically identify which employee made the changes," Sullivan said.

Sources said two of the other three players whose grades were changed are Kevin Johnson and Tim Flowers. Rose and the others helped take Simeon to city and state championships in 2006 and 2007.

Sullivan said his office began investigating the allegations in June 2007 and continued to question Simeon staff and others through May 2008.

We asked RedEye's Twitter followers the following short essay question: If it's proven that Derrick Rose cheated on his SAT, would it change your opinion of him? Here are some of the responses. Test your knowledge with RedEye every day at twitter.com/redeyechicago. compiled by scott kleinberg.

@keithdow

His job is to play basketball, so it wouldn't change my opinion. Lord knows how many other NBA players have done the same.

@Perno

No, he still chokes at free throws in pressure situations, regardless of his SATs.

@kevincastillo

I'd still be a fan, but it would. Mostly because he's portrayed as such an upstanding, good-head-on-hisshoulders, humble guy.

@Zephian

If basketball A, travels at speed X toward hoop Y, with a velocity of Z, who cares?! He plays great ball.

@Pletty

Nope, nobody's asking him to deliver their baby, he puts a ball in a hoop, it's a game, that is all ...

@danticoa

SATs. Seriously? At this stage of the game? Nobody past the age of 18 cares what your SAT scores were. Move on.

@MOgulnick

No. We all make mistakes. I dislike the SAT/ACT anyway. They're no judge of a person's true abilities. I stick by Rose.

Facing an icy reality

Let's not kid ourselves. I'm as tickled as anyone that the Blackhawks have restored the roar. But there's no way we're close to Detroit. Can't skate with them, can't score with them. We're looking at a two- to three-year project here, at best.

My definition of pain right now: The Red Wings take an ex-Hawk like Dan Cleary, figure out what he does best, and put him to work

One other worry: Our coach. Don't want to rain on the St. Joel de Quenneville parade, but the guy does not have a great postseason record. In fact, I remember a couple of great St. Louis Blues teams that he coached that fell flat in the playoffs. Just sayin' he may be the guy for now, but he may not be the guy for later.

A comeback on ice

The 2008-09 season was one of the more memorable in the 82-year history of the Blackhawks. Here's a look back at 5 moments that won't soon be forgotten:

The Opener: Oct. 10 The Hawks began the regular season at Madison Square Garden. Patrick Kane and Duncan

Keith scored, but the Hawks fell 4-2 to the New York Rangers. "At some point they kind of overwhelmed us," Jonathan Toews (above) said after his first game as Hawks captain.

5 The Kane Game: May 11 Seeking to close out the Vancouver Canucks in Game 6 of the conference semifinals, the Hawks turned to their youngest player to lead them. Kane, 20, scored three goals as the Hawks dispatched the Canucks 7-5. "It's about time I got the first hat trick of my career," Kane said. "It couldn't have come in a better game than this."

The Firing/ Hiring: Oct. 16

After starting the season 1-2-1, the Hawks fired popular Denis Savard as coach and replaced him with Joel Quenneville (left). General Manager Dale Tallon cited Savard's inexperience (65-67-15 coaching record) in making the move. "We felt we needed a more experienced person in that position," Tallon said.

The Classic: Jan. 1 The Hawks lose 6-4 to the Detroit Red Wings in the Winter Classic at Wrigley Field. The event lived up to the hype as playing outdoors on a baseball field in front of 40,818 chilled fans made for an exciting New Year's Day. "It was a special place to play," Quenneville said.

Where: Do-Division Street Fest and Sidewalk Sale, 2000 W. Division St. 312-850-9390.

When: May 30-31

Why: While this hipster bonanza offers a handful of worthwhile indie acts, we're especially excited about the rumbling beauty of agile Portland goofballs Menomena (8:30 p.m. Sunday), who can transition from freaked-out trippiness to ominous balladry at a moment's notice.

Also essential are Brooklyn's White Rabbits (7 p.m. Sunday), who take Spoon's tightly arranged pop ditties and give them room to breathe.

Price: $5 suggested donation

Justin Townes Earle, Here We Go Magic

Where: Metronome Celebration, 2000 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-934-6451.

When: June 6-7

Why: This new fest takes over Logan Square and packs a more than respectable roundup of rock, punk and folk acts. Don't miss Justin Townes Earle (8 p.m. June 7), who just put out the spare, spellbinding "Midnight at the Movies," and Here We Go Magic (7 p.m. June 6), Luke Temple's soaring outfit that haunts as much as it mystifies.

Price: $5 suggested donation

The Hold Steady, Dr. Dog

Where: Taste of Randolph, 900 W. Randolph St. 312-458-9401.

When: June 19-21

Why: Commonly referred to as the country's best bar band, The Hold Steady (appearing 8:15 p.m. June 21) turns every night into a booze-soaked party. You couldn't find a better act to play a street fest. Psychedelic rockers Dr. Dog (8:30 p.m. June 19) take the laziness out of nostalgia, delivering fond tributes to times when rock was pure and shaggy. Price: $10 suggested donation

The 1900s, Red Red Meat

Where: West Fest, 800 N. Damen Ave. 312-850-9390.

When: July 11-12

Why: Chicago pop wizards the 1900s (5:45 p.m. July 12) packed a terrific blend of male-female vocals and catchy hooks onto their debut, "Cold and Kind," which acknowledges life's sour moments to make the sweet that much better. Local '90s alt-rockers Red Red Meat (8:45 p.m. July 12) continue their re-emergence following the release of a deluxe edition of 1995's "Bunny Gets Paid."

Black Joe Lewis and the Honeybears, Karsh Kale and Timeline

Where: Folk and Roots Fest, Welles Park, 2333 W. Sunnyside Ave. 773-728-6000.

When: July 11-12

Why: Damn, making soul music this blazing should be against the law. (People could hurt themselves!) Yes, Black Joe Lewis and the Honeybears (8:30 p.m. July 11, right) blend funk and soul into a stew that may just explode in the summer heat. James Brown would be proud. Got energy left over? See electronica artist Karsh Kale (8:30 p.m. July 12) create a live instrument-enhanced frenzy of world music-turned-dance fusion. Price: $8 suggested donation

Camera Obscura delivers gorgeous, uptempo pop in spite of themselves

Obscura

Where: Metro,

3730 N. Clark St.

Tickets: $17.50.

773-549-0203

When: 9 p.m. Friday

By Scott Timberg

Glasgow-based poprockers Camera
Obscura began playing together in the '90s, but it wasn't until the band's second album,
"Underachievers Please Try Harder," was released in America in 2004 that we heard much of them here. Metromix checked in with singer Tracyanne Campbell to discuss the band's latest, the poignant, highly acclaimed "My Maudlin Career."

Your songs seem to be sad, or at least wistful, most of the time. How conscious is that?

I don't really make the choice to write in a particular way. It comes out very naturally. I think I've always been a bit melancholy. It's something I've always fought against—there can be something really dangerous in wallowing around. There's nothing romantic about it.

Still, many of the greatest songwriters—be it The Smiths or Richard Thompson—are best when their music is sadly romantic. Do you find yourself responding to that stuff most?

Sure, I like The Smiths, and I like Richard Thompson. I like all sorts of music. Anything that moves me. I can be moved by Kylie Minogue records. There's nothing like being moved by a song, whether it makes you sick to your stomach or wonderfully happy.

I imagine you bristle at being described as a Scottish pop group in the tradition of Belle and Sebastian and Orange Juice.

It's bulls***. We've just had a whole conversation about the music we're into, and it's not all Belle and Sebastian and Orange Juice. It's Carole King and the Beach Boys. People don't listen. It's not really who we are.

Your songs have a lot of polish to them. Do they change a lot in the studio or during rehearsal?

I'm quite a lazy person and quite a lazy songwriter. I just spell it out and hope it's done with. I think we're pretty good at getting them up and going.

What? No Spandex?!

Newsday

Sorry to let the cucumber out of the tinfoil, Spinal Tap fans, but it's called the Unwigged & Unplugged tour for a reason. So, no, the amps will not go up to 11. And forget the ill-fated drummer.

"We don't even have a drum machine," says actor-comedian-musician Michael McKean. "They've been known to explode."

McKean and his longtime pals Christopher Guest and Harry Shearer are back on the road, sans Spandex but armed with career-spanning tunes—from Tap's legendary "Big Bottom," to "Blood on the Coal," which was heard in folkparody film "A Mighty Wind" to "Waiting for Guffman" songs.

McKean chatted last week before the group's Cleveland show.

It's an anniversary year for you guys, isn't it?

It's the 25th anniversary of the release of "This Is Spinal Tap," but it's the 30th anniversary of our appearance on "The T.V. Show," a Rob Reiner pilot. We show a clip in the current show from that performance.

What can folks expect at the show?

We are able to hop around the entire oeuvre, as the French put it. We do a Tap song, then a Folksmen song, then we do a song from "Guffman," then we do a Harry Shearer song and then we do another Tap song.

Done au naturel, so to speak.

It's pretty much who we really are. We're very relaxed onstage, which is kind of how we want it at this stage in our lives. We've been having a great time every night.

Spinal Tap is actually releasing a new album, "Back From the Dead," next month. You revisit the songs from the film, right?

What you hear on the soundtrack album are not the songs that would have been if they were studio productions, so we rerecorded them. It's revisionism, yes, but we are also making use of some of the sophisticated studio stuff that wasn't around in 1982. We recorded "Jazz Oddyssey" at long last. And a couple of new versions—a reggae "Flower People," "[Funky] Sex Farm" with horns and rapping and the whole catastrophe. And "Short and Sweet" the joke is "Short and Sweet" can go on for half an hour with all the solos.

How does it feel after all these years to have folks come out and see you guys?

A lot of it has to do with Chris' work, his subsequent stuff—with "Guffman" through "For Your Consideration." There's always music in these films, a lot of original music. Obviously with "Guffman" and "Mighty Wind," there was actual source music that we see happening on the screen. ... His work has expanded the demographic. We have accompanied minors right up to guys in their 70s and 80s.

How's living in L.A. treating you?

I am never there. When I am finished here on the road, the band goes home and I stay in Chicago. We're workshopping this play, "Superior Donuts," which I did at Steppenwolf last year, it's a Tracy Letts play. We're workshopping in preparation to bring it to New York, where we're looking for an October opening.

North Avenue Beach lifeguards confront challenges on the sand and in the bedroom, with strangers and with best friends. Ben Wells plays Hughie; Katie O'Hagan is the virgin neighbor who has always pined for him; Robert Belushi (son of Jim) is Hughie's best friend, Otis; and Chryssie Whitehead stars as Otis' ex/Hughie's new squeeze.

The verdict: Writer/director/cast member Justen Naughton's time spent working as a North Avenue Beach lifeguard lends "Riff Raff" an authenticity, but a certain tolerance for immature jackasses is required to enjoy this film. While a lot of the setups are cliché, much of the execution isn't. Naughton demonstrates honesty toward 20something language, hookups and mistakes. It's a funny, snarky look at the hiccups of youth. MATT PAIS IS METROMIX MOVIES PRODUCER.

What Goes Up (R)

Assigned to New Hampshire in 1986 to cover local teacher Christa McAuliffe's voyage on the Challenger shuttle, New York newspaper reporter Campbell (Steve Coogan) gets wrapped up in the lives of high school students while mourning the loss of the kids' favorite teacher and his best friend, Sam. who recently committed suicide.

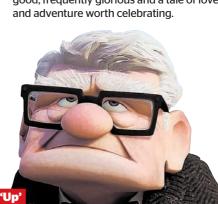

Sheesh, that's a loaded drama if there ever was one, and a story that doesn't necessarily seem suited to funnyman Coogan, comedian Molly Shannon and dramatic lightweight Hilary Duff. "What Goes Up" is muted and never moving.

>> Read Matt Pais' 3-star review of "Drag Me to Hell" in Saturday's RedEye or at metromix.com

Up (PG)

All their lives. Carl (voiced by Ed Asner) and Ellie planned to travel to Paradise Falls in South America. Ellie died before the couple made it there. When Carl uses balloons to elevate his house, head to the dream destination and do right by his late wife, he's thrilled-until he discovers Junior Wilderness Explorer Russell, who accidentally tagged along.

In Disney-Pixar's first 3-D installment, the vibrant colors pop and the imaginative scenery flows without any of the usual 3-D gimmicks. It's also impeccably scored, quite funny and features moments between Carl and Ellie that are as playful, moving and heartbreaking as anything in a live-action romance. "Up" is always very good, frequently glorious and a tale of love and adventure worth celebrating.

Departures

(PG-13)

This won last vear's Best Foreign Film prize, Oscar? While this Japanese drama about death and family has moving moments of mourning, it also strikes strange comic notes that don't mesh with an otherwise somber tone. And a plot hinging on coincidence and deception proves lazy instead of rewarding. The storvline involves prepping the deceased for their "departures," with some dignity in the process somewhat overshadowed by gross cleanup scenes done better in "Sunshine Cleaning." There's honor in the ideas and performances here, but that's where it ends.

Break-out stardom no easy feat for Biel

The Orlando Sentinel

She's done movies that either weren't finished or went straight to video. The "break-out role" hasn't happened.

But just when you write Jessica Biel off as Justin Timberlake's girlfriend, or the new face of Revlon, or more "celebrity" than actress, she goes and does Noel Coward on you.

It's not just about the money, being in a hit, Biel says. "I Now Pronounce You Chuck & Larry" was her biggest.

"If you do something out of the norm, something creatively different, more demanding or challenging, it's easy to get excited about work," she said. "I look for that."

"Easy Virtue," a period piece about a brash American creating waves in a family of stiff, upper-class Brits, was Biel's big stretch, a chance, as she puts it, "to play a great broad" and trade barbs with the cream of the crop of British acting.

Easy Virtue

(PG-13)

"[Jessica] Biel's performance strengthens as her role turns heavier and less slapsticky ... But the road there isn't easy."

tor Stephan Elliott said, laughing.

Just because she's beautiful and being romanced by a pop star, don't think that Biel, who turned 27 in March, couldn't use a break. Her much-ballyhooed "stripper" drama "Powder Blue" went straight to video. Another edgy film she was in, the David O. Russell satire

"Nailed," halted production and was

"We knew we'd made the right call when Colin Firth comes over to me and goes, 'She's going to steal the bloody movie from all of us," direc-never finished. Even "Easy Virtue," which Elliott and his co-writer freely adapted from a 1924 Noel Coward play, was panned by the U.K.'s Coward purists.

"It's really hard to make a decision about what you want to do," Biel said. "And worry about what could happen to the movie outside of my control makes it even harder. 'Is this movie going to come out? Will anyone see it?' You have to let all of those things go ...

"But sometimes, it is hard not to think about those other possibilities that could derail your train."

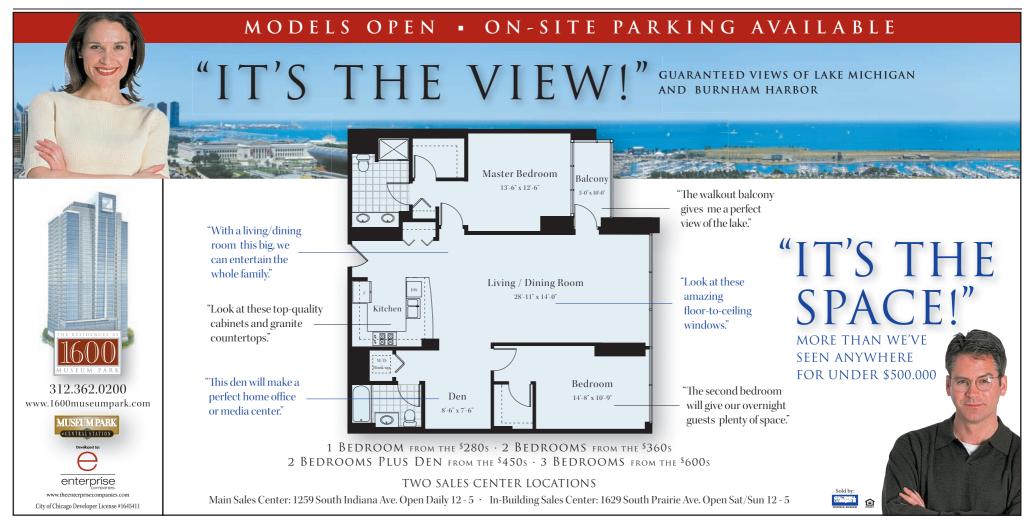

She was "devastated" by the "Nailed" experience, in which the money ran out mid-filming. "If I'd had an idea that it might happen, would I still have done it? I don't know. Probably. It made me a better actor."

But the breakdown of "Nailed" was closely followed by a bit of good news. "Easy Virtue" played at the Toronto Film Festival and the reviews were glowing—"Biel sparkles," Variety enthused. One way she sparkles is in doing something she's long wanted to do in a movie—sing.

"Turns out, she'd had all this musical theater in her younger days," Elliott said of Biel's rendition of "Mad About the Boy." "She was so delighftul in that scene that we had other actors start singing. It really changed the film."

Biel laughed. "It sounds really cheesy to say it, but singing is one of those things I do that makes my heart, my gut, feel really happy. It's like I'm 9 years old again, living a dream I had all the way back then. It really makes all the bad things that happen worthwhile."

Fresh Horizon Realty Offering Buyers New-Home Prices That May Never Be Seen Again ... Homes with 3.99% 30-Year Fixed SPECIAL FINANCING!

May 19, 2009 . . . . . . There has never been a better time to buy a new home than right now – home prices are at historic lows and these prices may never be seen again if buyers don't take advantage of them.

"We are at a time in home buying where consumers literally can get the best deals of their lifetimes right now, but only while these deals still exist," said Don Weiland, Managing Broker for the emerging real estate company, Fresh Horizon Realty. "We have properties in Chicago and the northern suburbs that give buyers the opportunity to purchase a home at not only historic prices, but unheard of mortgage rates."

According to Weiland, prices are due to increase over the next several months for a variety of reasons. First, under current market conditions, there is very little new construction underway. At today's prices, developers are opting to postpone, or cancel new projects, Weiland said.

Since builders planning a new condominium development or community will take years in the making, Fresh Horizon Realty does not forecast enough new inventories to hit the market in the near future.

In addition, Weiland added, major mortgage companies as well as the federal government are rolling out programs designed to stop foreclosures, eliminating hundreds of homes that would have increased current supply.

Demand has also been pent up because buyers have been waiting for the real estate market to hit "rock bottom." As home transactions increase and homes selling at higher prices become better publicized, Weiland believes there will be a flood of consumer buyers that will jump off the fence and purchase immediately, for fearing of missing out on this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Another big reason is because mortgage rates are at the lowest rates ever – not just in recent years but literally, they are the lowest in the history of our country. These lower rates make owning a home more affordable than ever, offering the opportunity to buyers that may not have had the ability to buy a home previously.

"It's just an incredible time to buy a new home and if you can take advantage now, you'll see the difference in a few years from those who did take advantage and those who didn't. Especially when home prices begin rising again."

But while rates and inventories are key reasons to buy, so is the offering of incentives that builders are throwing into homes currently, Weiland said.

"Builders are offering incentives that used to cost tens of thousands of dollars but they are being thrown in as standard features on many homes because they need to move their inventory," Weiland said. "It's just an incredible time to take advantage of that."

Working with local financial institutions and developers, Fresh Horizon Realty has a portfolio of homes ranging from $169,000 condominiums to $3 million luxury single-family homes.

"Most of our inventory is priced below the builder's cost to construct them," said Weiland. "In addition to below-cost pricing, we offer special financing that buyers really can't get from anywhere else but through us on these homes.

"Based on your down payment, we offer a 30-year fixed mortgage at 3.99 percent. This rate is far below current market rates, and offers $50,000 worth of additional buying power for our clients."

For example, a Fresh Horizon Realty buyer can purchase a $350,000 home for the same payment as buying a less luxurious home that would cost $285,000. Only our rates can get these low payments!

With jumbo mortgages as low as 3.99 percent, the buying power is even greater for luxury homes. Fresh Horizon Realty clients can buy a $750,000 luxury home for the same monthly mortgage payment as a home costing $580,000 – only with Fresh Horizon Realty and this represents $170,000 of additional buying power!

Along with low rates, Fresh Horizon Realty has programs for buyers that need 100 percent financing at 4.99 percent. A 100 percent loan simply is not readily available, let alone at below market rates, Weiland said.

Fresh Horizon Realty has luxury condominiums and single-family homes throughout Chicago and the northwest suburbs that qualify for this special financing. Working directly with the financial Institutions and developers, Fresh Horizon Realty has the ability to offer its clients significantly more home for less money, added Weiland.

For more information about Fresh Horizon Realty and its special inventory of new homes at below market rates, visit www.homesunder1k.com or call (866) 715-1453.

As more travelers show an interest in local cuisines, a Milwaukee chef is taking the trend a bit wheat fields and breweries. This year's first class further with a cooking school that travels to the food's origins.

The Braise Culinary School in West Bend hosts classes on farms and in forests during warm months. Most classes start with a farm tour—or recently, a walk in the woods—so students can see how food grows before they learn to prepare it.

"The idea, basically, is to reconnect people to their food," chef and owner David Swanson said.

He came up with the idea while working on a business plan for a restaurant and attached cooking school.

"One question that I would think that would come up is: 'Where is this food coming from?'' Swanson said. From there, it was a short jump to offering classes—sometimes literally—in the

Swanson, 39, worked in restaurants in the Chicago area and Milwaukee for about 20 years before opening the cooking school in 2006. Since then, he has cooked in apple orchards, began with a mushroom hunt in woods near the University Wisconsin-Washington County.

Many of Swanson's classes are taught on CSA farms. The farmers sell shares of their crop in the spring, often for $500 or $600, and then deliver boxes of produce weekly during the growing season.

Typically, about a third of Swanson's students are CSA members eager to learn how to prepare the food they're receiving. Others are foodies, and some just want a new experience.

"The farmer will talk about what they're growing, what their practices are," Swanson said. "People will ask questions about what they are growing in their garden, how it pertains to them."

Swanson also plans classes at a creamery near Madison and a wheat field on Washington Island in Lake Michigan.

Things that turn

DRINK Goose Island

Natural Craft sodas

About $4.29 for a 4-pack in stores

Most people probably know Chicago's Goose Island Brewery for its beers. That could change real soon. The company has created a line of craft sodas that are low in sodium, caffeine-free, naturally flavored and sweetened with 100 percent pure cane sugar. Yes, your mouth should be watering. All five flavors pack 180 calories per 355-milliliter bottle. Here's what RedEye's test tasters had to say

CHICAGO STYLE ROOT BEER

- » Taste is subtle, not cloyingly sweet. It's flatter than I remember A&W, but the lack of fizz is actually nice. Thumbs up.
- » This is the perfect summer drink: sweet and refreshing. It would make a great float too.

ORANGE CREAM

- » Tastes more like an orange Creamsicle and less like pop. It's sugary sweet but there's no fizz.
- » I'm not usually a pop drinker, but this stuff is way better than Orange Crush. It doesn't have that chemical aftertaste.

SPICY GINGER

- » Blech! This tastes like a flat ginger ale and lacks the spice promised on the packaging.
- » Spicy is right. The ginger takes a getting used to, but then it goes down smooth.

- » Surprisingly light for a cream soda, yet it has a full vanilla flavor with only a hint of syrupy aftertaste.
- » If I had Gene Simmons' tonque, I'd lick inside the bottle.

CONCORD GRAPE

- » It tastes a little like over-sweetened NyQuil minus the alcohol. Yum! Not. It also turned my tongue purple.
- » Tastes like Dimetapp cold medicine without the nasal-clearing abilities.

'Maneater'

8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Lifetime Even playing a gold digger, Sarah Chalke is adorable. She stars as a vapid socialite who schemes to land Hollywood's hottest new producerand by hot. #### ALBUM 'The High End of Low'

Marilyn Manson

The lighter-sounding moments on Marilyn Manson's latest may seem out of character, but don't be fooled. With song titles like "I Have To Look Up Just To See Hell," no matter how high Manson may seem to go, he still wallows in darkness and despair on his strongest overall disc in a decade. "We're From America" is absolutely contagious behind a chugging tempo and offers a less-than-affectionate take on our nation, including the line "We don't like to kill our unborn/We need them to grow up to fight our wars." As you've probably heard, Jay Leno's last guest when he leaves "The Tonight Show" on Friday is Conan O'Brien.

"I'm glad that it's going to Conan," Leno said of his successor in a recent conference call, the Detroit Free Press reports. "It couldn't go to a better person. I mean, he's the guy and we're friends and it's a really smooth transireally unusual and different planned" for his last show. But we just want to know what he and O'Brien will talk about. Fortunately, RedEye has a time tion." Leno also said he has "something machine in its stable*. So we went to the future to nab a transcript of Friday's show. Not wanting to spoil everything, we redacted some of the conversation.

O'Brien

THE TONIGHT SHOW WITH JAY LENO THIS IS A RUSH TRANSCRIPT EXCERPT. THIS COPY MAY NOT BE IN ITS FINAL FORM AND MAY BE UPDATED.

JAY LENO: Welcome back to the show, everybody. I'm talking tonight with my successor, Conan O'Brien, who is a complete and utter mind, Conan?

CONAN O'BRIEN: Well, first of all I want to the men and women across America who have tuned in to "The Tonight Show" for all these years with Jay. show here, and I'm looking forward to making it show.

JAY LENO: That's just great. Isn't it comic sensibilities? I mean, everyone who watched me on this show will CONAN O'BRIEN: Plus, we'll still do "Jay Walking." Which was funny. Not once.

(APPLAUSE)

JAY LENO: "Jay Walking" is key, Conan. If you don't do bits like that, people will totally : you whenever you

Kinda like at a

CONAN O'BRIEN: Weird.

JAY LENO: Yeah, dude. Seriously.

Late-night Twitter

We asked RedEye's Twitter followers how they're feeling about the latenight landscape these days. Holy smokes we got a lot of answers. Here are a few. Tune in to RedEye at any hour at twitter.com/ redeyechicago. COMPILED BY JIM WALSH.

@matthewgaydos:

Conan all the way, I'm glad Jay is finally stepping aside and letting the real talent shine

@EvervCliche1320:

Leno's good but Conan is going to be amazing. His new commercial where he's running on the beach, he cracks me up.

@JK726:

I'll miss Jay Leno. I've missed him for 16 years, what's one more night?

@mike6545:

Sad because I only began watching Leno last year and he was my favorite. I think Fallon is getting good but Conan is a classic

@amandarosek:

My dad who sleeps on the couch at 10:30 every night loves Jay and will LOVE his new time even more. I can't wait for Conan!

@chucksalvatore:

I will watch Conan for the 1st week, he is the only one worth watching. Ferguson's monologue is pretty funny p.s. Fallon sucks

Chicago, very funny

You already know Chicago is the nation's comedy capital. Soon everyone will know. TBS has ordered 10 episodes of "The Very Funny Show," which will be taped June 19-20 at Zanies Comedy Club in Old Town during TBS' Just For Laughs festival. Former "Saturday Night Live" cast member and sometime Chicago resident Tim Meadows will host the half-hour, late-night standup series, which will premiere in November. Tickets are available at the Zanies box office, 1548 N. Wells St., by phone at 312-337-4027 or online at zanies.com.

On the mend

Depeche Mode is rescheduling nine shows while lead singer David Gahan recovers from surgery to remove a tumor, Reuters reports. Gahan was rushed to the hospital before a May 12 concert in Athens after a bout of gastroenteritis. While at the hospital, it was discovered the singer had a "lowgrade malignant tumor" in his bladder. The tour will restart in Leipzig, Germany, on June 8, well before the band's Lollapalooza gig.

Court date

Rihanna will come face to face with Chris Brown-in court. Following a hearing in L.A. on Thursday, Rihanna's lawyer, Donald Etra, said prosecutors intend to subpoena the singer to appear at a June 22 hearing, so the court can determine if there's enough evidence to go to trial, people. com reports. Brown, 20, has pleaded not guilty to allegedly beating Rihanna on Feb. 8.

Boyle breakdown?

Quietly married

Angelina 2.0?

A spokeswoman for Susan Boyle says the "Britain's Got Talent" finalist lost her cool after being harassed by two journalists at a London hotel. Boyle reportedly swore in front of fans and contestants using-gasp!-four-letter words. Meanwhile, "Britain's Got Talent" judge Piers Morgan pleaded Thursday on his blog for everyone to back off Boyle. She "is like a frightened rabbit in headlights," Morgan wrote. "I am calling today for everyone to just give her a break."

David Hyde Pierce, a.k.a. Niles from "Frasier," revealed to the "The View" on Thursday that he and his longtime partner, Brian Hargrove, got married in California last fall. Pierce, who had always kept a low profile about his personal life, said he was so outraged by California upholding Proposition 8 that he plans to speak out and join gay rights rallies, according to usmagazine.com.

The rumor that "Transformers" star Megan Fox could take on the titular role in a potential "Lara

Croft" flick is picking up more steam. "Terminator

Salvation" executive producer Dan Lin, who's attached to the project, tells ew.com that a script isn't yet written but added Fox would be a "no brainer" for Angelina Jolie's old gig.
